The new Satoshi emails are fake. So is Bitcoin's 'creator'.

We already have seen in this article¹ that Bitcoin and, in proxy, all other crypto currencies, have been created by various intelligence agencies. Anything in the mainstream that is said about Bitcoin is the usual misinformation.

This week, controlled opposition disinfo website zerohedge² ran an article about alleged disclosed emails from Bitcoin's so called 'inventor' Satoshi Nakamoto with details on his alleged development of Bitcoin. As you can read from the article above¹ which exposes Bitcoin as an intelligence project and global scam, it is easy to deduct that these emails are fake. This is because Bitcoin was not developed by one man, rather it was concocted in the basement of Intelligence with a probable close connection with the science branch of the Pentagon called DARPA³.

But we can also see we are being fleeced once again in that ZeroHedge article by the way they present it. Firstly, they disclose the email address of Nakamoto. This is a huge red flag as these emails come out of an alleged lawsuit in the UK. If this were a real email address, it would have been made unrecognizable, but no, here we can see it, and if you like, you could just drop Sathoshi a little fan mail. That is not how it is done in a legal case and could also mean it is punishable. So you are being conned as you are reading the ZeroHedge article. The lawsuit is probably fake too.

Secondly, it is an email address from 'alternative' email service gmx. This organization was a big sponsor in the Formula 1 race competition where sponsorship contracts run in the millions, so there is no real 'alternative' angle with gmx at all. They sponsored Mick Schumacher, the son of world famous F1 racer, Michael Schumacher. It is just another filthy systemic email provider that follows the same privacy laws that are all over the world. The same laws that will guarantee you will not be able to be anonymous while using email service. So why did Satoshi choose this email provider? Spoiler alert: he didn't. These emails are all made up.

There is also a little hint intelligence has left us while they created Bitcoin. Of all the numbers they could have chosen for the maximum amount of Bitcoins that could ever be created, they chose 21 million. Why not 20 million? Why not 25 million? No, it had to be 21 million. Why? Agenda 21. That is why. I am sure you heard of it and if not, I am sure you can type that into a search engine and explore for yourself.

It is the usual in your face bullshit we had to endure for so long with all the projects that intelligence run.

Lastly, ZeroHedge ran another BS article⁴ about Bitcoin. That the next financial crisis will trigger a Bitcoin revolution. No it won't. In the next financial crisis we will see the largest theft and transfer of wealth in the history of the world. Bitcoin will go to zero, as Central Bank Digital Currencies (CBDC's) will be the new norm. Coupled with a massive prolonged and widespread global cyber attack, after which they will force the entire world into the digital ID, they will have the perfect setup, digital ID, CBDC and a social credit score system (digital caste system) to take away the very last bit of freedom you have.

Just say no to it. Just refuse their scams and bullshit and call them out for what it is: another major deception. Just refuse the digital ID and start making personal agreements of exchange with other people to live your life outside of this digital fairytale bullshit system of hoaxes and deception. Be brave and hold your ground.
